

Layers

- 1) If you can do it on a Layer do it on a Layer.
- 2) Use an Adjustment Layer for all color and brightness corrections. The Adjustment Layer will save the original values of the pixels. By using a Layer you can always go back to the original state of the image and tweak the corrections or totally redo them. If you had not used an Adjustment Layer and instead used the Image/Adjust pull-down menu commands the original pixels will be permanently modified and you cannot easily and accurately backout or modify any adjustment you made.