

Would you like more room in your PhotoShop workspace for your image? Then you can dock your Palette tabs in something called the Palette Well. The Palette Well is a part of the Tools Options bar and is a dark gray patch at its left side. At some screen resolutions the Palette Well cannot be seen and I have not figured out how to make it viewable. If you can see the Palette Well then you can drop and drag each Palette tab, such as the Layers tab, and dock it in the Palette Well. If you want to use that Palette then just click it and it drops down. Click anywhere outside the palette and it collapses. You can also drop and drag the tab out of the Palette Well anytime you want it to stay on the workspace.
